DETAILED ACTION

Receipt is acknowledged of amendments to the specification and claims in the papers filed on 3/11/2002. Claims 1-18 were cancelled. Claims 19-36 are pending.

Election/Restrictions

Restriction is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 and 372.

This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In accordance with 37 CFR 1.499, applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single invention to which the claims must be restricted.

Group I, claim(s) 19-30, drawn to a method for identifying a regulatory sequence affected by a feedback mechanism on the alteration of synthesis or activity of a bacterial essential protein.

Group II, claim(s) 31-35, drawn to a modulator of a bacterial essential protein and a method for identifying a modulator of a bacterial essential protein.

Group III, claim 36, drawn to a method of inhibiting bacterial growth comprising identifying an inhibitor of a bacterial essential protein.

The inventions listed as Groups I-III do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, they lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: the putative special technical feature of the Group I claims is the method for identifying a regulatory sequence affected by a feedback mechanism on the alteration of synthesis or activity of a bacterial essential protein; this feature is not present in Groups II-III. The putative special technical feature of the Group II claims is a modulator of a bacterial essential protein; this feature is not present in Groups I and III. The putative special technical feature of the Group III claim is a method for inhibiting bacterial growth comprising identifying a modulator of a bacterial essential protein and contacting bacteria with the modulator; this feature is not present in Groups I and II.

This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

The species are as follows:

1. A method for identifying a regulatory sequence affected by a feedback mechanism on the alteration of synthesis or activity of a bacterial essential protein comprising the use of a bacterial cell having a reporter gene under the control of a candidate regulatory sequence

2. A method for identifying a regulatory sequence affected by a feedback mechanism on the alteration of synthesis or activity of a bacterial essential protein comprising the use of any bacterial host cell and monitoring a change in gene expression.

The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner:

The first species corresponds to claims 19, 23-30. The second species corresponds to claims 20-22. The following claim(s) are generic: 31-36.

The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: The putative special technical feature of the first species is the use of a reporter gene under the control of a candidate regulatory sequence to identify the regulatory sequence affected by a feedback mechanism on the alteration of synthesis or activity of a bacterial essential protein; this feature is not shared by the claims of species 2. The putative special technical feature of the second species is the use of any host bacterial cell wherein the expression of a bacterial gene is monitored to identify the regulatory sequence affected by a feedback mechanism on the alteration of synthesis or activity of a bacterial essential protein; this feature is not shared by the claims of species 1.

Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
